JUVENILE JUSTICE REFORM BRINGS CHANGES

A bill passed by the Idaho Legislature in 1989 is bringing sweeping changes in how the courts handle delinquent children. The "Juvenile Justice Reform Act of 1989" was the first major overhaul in decades of the state's juvenile laws, and gave judges greater control--and responsibilities--over juvenile offenders.

The Old System

Until now, judges had few options when sentencing juveniles: detention limited to 30 days; only fines for alcohol use; a single diagnostic center, statewide; few community treatment centers; little involvement of parents. Judges who wanted to keep children in compliance with probation conditions, or who wanted to help children deal with family and personal problems often were frustrated in their attempts.

Tougher . . . .

The new law, which goes into effect on January 15, 1990, gives judges a wide array of sentencing options. Depending on the nature of the offense, juveniles can be sentenced for 90 to 100 days longer, under probation, to force them to comply with probation conditions. Mechanisms have been established to reimburse victims of juvenile delinquency, and under-age alcohol use prohibitions have been given new teeth--judges can seize juvenile driver licenses. Once limited to recommending, judges now can require juveniles committed to the Department of Health and Welfare to be held in secure confinement.

But More Rehabilitation-Minded . . . .

But the main thrust of the reform law was to provide a broad range of supervision and rehabilitation programs, through state contracts with private providers. These community-based programs would vary from highly secure facilities to emergency shelters, diagnostic units and day treatment centers. Community service sentences are encouraged by limiting liability exposure of sponsors. Detention center standards are extended to post-adjudicated children, and children in custody must have their status reviewed more often by state officials.

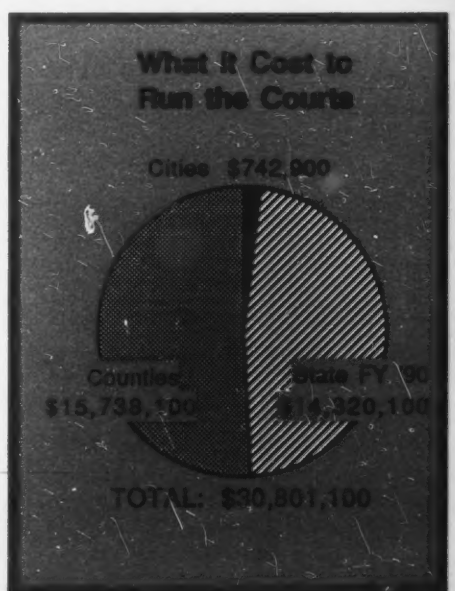
Additionally, new statutes give courts greater jurisdiction over parents of juvenile offenders, making parents sign probation contracts with their child, and subjecting parents to monetary penalties if a child violates probation.

Judges' Training

Part of the new law requires training and certification by the Supreme Court of magistrate judges who handle juvenile delinquency cases. A committee chaired by Pocatello Magistrate Judge Dan C. McDougall (see inset) held a series of meetings in 1989 to develop training and certification recommendations, as well as standards for placing delinquent children in secure confinement facilities. A special day-long training seminar on the new law was attended in November, 1989, by almost every magistrate judge in the state. During 1990 and 1991, additional education programs will be held to give judges the latest research and practical advice on sentencing alternatives.

Future Changes

No one is predicting that Idaho has solved its juvenile delinquency problems, despite the wide-ranging nature of the statutory changes. Community-based treatment programs are yet to be funded, and regional juvenile detention centers are still in the planning stages. But the state has taken a major step forward, and judges may soon have the treatment options they so long have needed to address delinquent juvenile behavior. Good news, because declares Judge McDougall: "Idaho's most important resources are kids."



Increase Continues

TRIAL COURT FILINGS SET BENCHMARK

Booming is the best word to describe both Idaho's economy and filings in Idaho's trial courts. Increased prices for Idaho's agricultural products, along with a revitalization of Idaho's mining industry, the expansion of new businesses, and the discovery of Idaho's recreational opportunities, have combined to acceleratee Idaho's economy into the new decade. Tracking very closely this upturn in the economy are case filings in Idaho's trial courts. Following on the heels of a 5% increase in filings reported between 1987 and 1988, Idaho's trial courts report a 4.5% increase in filings between 1988 and 1989. Overall, there were a total of 379,316 new cases filed in 1989, as compared with 363,139 new filings in 1988.

Growth Changes

During the 1970's, new cases had been filed in the Idaho courts at an almost uniform 4-5% annual increase. Contributing factors to the growth in trial court business: the significant growth in Idaho's population and the increased number of attorneys admitted to practice in the state of Idaho. Between 1970 and 1980, the state's population grew by 32% - from 713,015 to 943,935 - and the number of attorneys almost tripled - from an estimated 600 to 1,540.

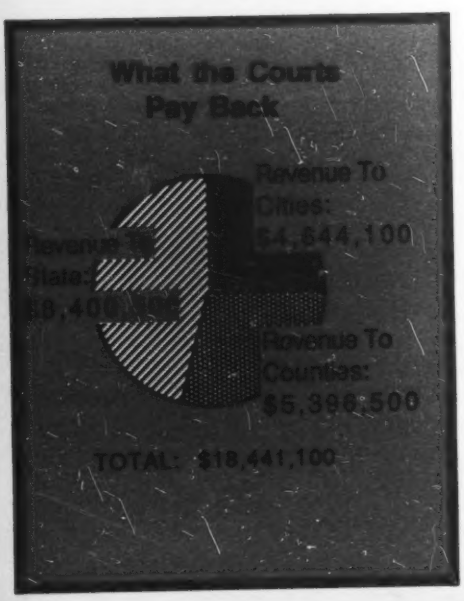
The substantial case filing increases crested in 1980, when 321,517 cases were filed with the trial courts. Trial court filings took a sharp turn down in 1981 and 1982, perhaps a reflection of Idaho's economic recession in the early 1980's. This decline in filings lasted only two years, with 1983 marking the beginning of a new trend of increased filings.

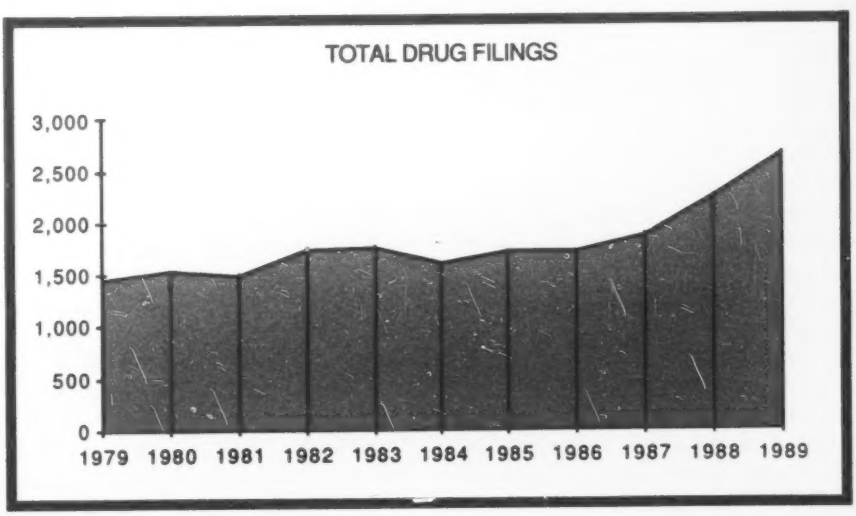
Since 1982, the trial courts have seen their filings increase each year. In 1982, only 296,733 cases were reported filed. By 1989, that total had increased to 379,616 new cases, resulting in a 28% increase over the 1982 total.

tion and the expansion in the number of attorneys. All of these factors combined indicate that in upcoming years, Idaho's trial courts can continue to see a significant increase in the demand for service that they provide. With some forecasts of a 30% population increase in the next two decades, court officials can expect to build more courtrooms and to add more judges to accommodate heavier workloads in future years.

Drug Cases Jump

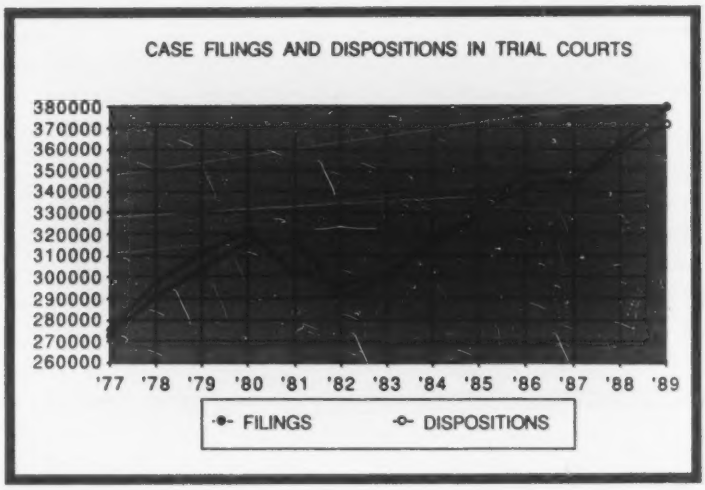
While most of the nation's urban areas struggle to deal with the crush of drug-related criminal cases, Idaho has remained relatively free of this scourge. But there are signs that the times may be changing. Trial judges in a number of Idaho cities report increasing numbers of cases involving cocaine and methamphetamines. The statistics support this trend: in 1989, felony drug cases jumped 33% statewide, while misdemeanor drug filings were up by 17%. The overall increase in new drug cases was 21%--an increase to 3,397 new filings in 1989 from the 2,799 cases reported in 1988.





While the trial court caseload increases of the 1970's took place during sharp population growth, the increased filings reported since 1982 have come at a time when the economy was generally flat and there was some population loss. However, since 1986, the economy in Idaho has taken a turn for the better, resulting in increased popula-

Many other state court systems and related criminal justice agencies--prosecutors, defenders, corrections facilities--are reeling from the enormous number of new cases involving drugs, (primarily "crack" and "crank"), being filed daily. In some large urban trial courts, civil cases virtually are being pushed off the court calendars by the glut of criminal drug cases. Court and law enforcement officials wonder whether and how long Idaho can avoid a similar fate.



Winners and Losers

Traffic cases (not including DUI) reached a new record level during 1989. Traffic filings during 1988 were at 234,217. One year later, that number has increased to 240,679 traffic filings, an overall increase of 2.7%.

Civil case filings in the district court dropped during 1989, for the fourth year in a row. While civil filings were reported at record levels at the end of 1986, they have declined each year since then, with an overall decline of 16.4% between 1986 and 1989, to stand at its lowest point this decade. This drop in civil filings runs counter to the opinions of national experts, who predicted record civil filings to continue through to the end of the 1980's, based on economic trends. Curiously, civil filings in the magistrate division increased for the third year in a row, up 6% over the civil filings reported at the end of 1988.

Idaho's small claims department witnessed a slight drop in the number of new complaints filed during 1989, when compared to the number reported during 1988. A total of 15,204 small claims complaints were filed in 1988, compared with the 14,911 complaints filed during 1989, reflecting a 2% decrease. Although Idaho does not allow attorneys or collection agencies to file small claims actions, small businessmen and private individuals continue to utilize the small claims department as a quick and inexpensive way to collect debts. Overall, the number of civil cases in the district courts, involving damages in excess of $10,000, have declined steadily since 1986, while at the other end of the spectrum, the number of small claims disputes involving amounts of $2,000 or less have dropped as well. The only area where there appears to be any significant increase is in those matters involving amounts between $2,000 and $10,000, which are handled in the magistrate court.

Total district court filings for 1989 are up considerably from the number reported one year before. Overall, there has been a 4.4% increase, confined primarily to criminal case processing. Criminal filings in the district courts have increased steadily during the 1980's, with a 10.7% increase in 1989 over the number reported at the end of 1988. Since 1980, criminal filings have increased 80% in the district courts. The two criminal case types that showed the most substantial increases during 1989 were felony drug cases, which were up by 33% and felony DUI matters, which increased 15.3%.

Dispositions Increase

Idaho's trial judges continue to increase dispositions in response to the increased number of cases entering the system. During 1989, a total of 371,961 cases reached final disposition, an increase of 12,537, or 3% over the 359,424 reported one year ago. Of the civil cases receiving a final judgment in the trial courts during 1989, 23,232, or 42%, were disposed of with a trial or court hearing. Of the criminal cases, 96% were disposed of through pleas or dismissals, while 14,969, or 4%, received a court or jury trial.

Cases Per Judge

On the average, a total of 343 new cases were filed per district judge statewide. The average number of filings per magistrate judge was 5,207 cases during 1989. This compares with prior new case filings of 311 per district judge and 4,969 new cases per magistrate judge during 1988. The district judges disposed an average of 342 cases per judge during 1989, while judges of the magistrate division averaged 5,080 dispositions per judge.

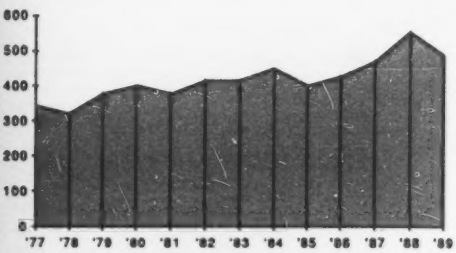
APPELLATE FILINGS DOWN - DISPOSITIONS UP

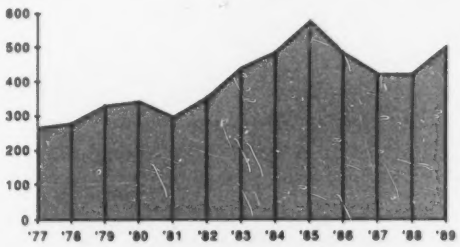
Idaho's Appellate courts saw filings drop during 1989 from the record levels reported during the previous year. A total of 489 new appeals were filed during 1989, down 67 filings from the record 556 reported at the end of 1988. Despite being fewer than the previous year, the 489 appeals reported during 1989 still is the second highest number on record.

APPEALS FILED



Petitions and motions continued to increase during 1989, as 1,801 new petitions and motions were filed with Idaho's appellate courts. Ultimately, 1,804 petitions and motions were disposed of by the courts. The number of petitions and motions filed during 1989 was only 1.9% less than the 1983 record total of 1,836. Also during 1989, there were a total of 51 original ginal proceedings and 24 attorney discipline matters filed with the court.

APPEALS DISPOSED

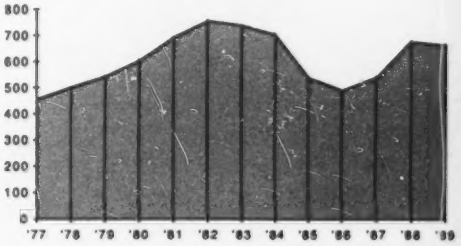


Near record level dispositions were reported by the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals during 1989. A total of 500 appeals reached final disposition, which is the second highest number reported in history. The Supreme Court disposed of 148 appeals by majority opinions, while the Court of Appeals disposed of 225 appeals by majority opinion.

A drop in the number of new appeals filed, combined with an increased number of dispositions, resulted in a slight drop in the total number of appeals pending before Idaho's appellate courts. At the end of 1988, there were 682 pending appeals. One year later, that number had dropped to 671, a decline of 1.7%.

Litigants appearing before Idaho's appellate courts continue to see their appeals resolved in considerably less time than was required just five years ago. During 1989, it took an average of 662 days from the time an appeal was filed with the Supreme Court until it reached final disposition. For those appeals assigned to the Court of Appeals, it took an average of 508 days to reach final disposition. Overall, Idaho's appellate courts have cut appellate delay by nearly 10 months from 1984's average time of 872 days.

PENDING APPEALS



FAX USE GETS GREEN LIGHT

In 1989, Idaho became one of the first court systems in the nation to authorize the use of FAX technology throughout its appellate and trial courts. Effective January 1, 1990, the Idaho Supreme Court has adopted rules authorizing the filing and service of documents by FAX in civil and criminal cases, as well as in appeals.

The rules allow filing by FAX if the document does not exceed ten (10) pages in length and if there is no filing fee. Documents can be filed with the trial courts only during normal working hours and only if there is a FAX machine in the office of the filing clerk of the court.

The rules also allow documents to be served upon another attorney by FAX, but only if the attorney has a FAX machine in the office.

The greatest difficulty in developing FAX rules concerned documents requiring filing fees. A survey of Idaho's district court clerks found that it would be burdensome to monitor whether or not the filing fee was received after a document was "faxed," and that it would be hard to "unfile" a pleading once accepted, due to non-payment of fees. The proposed rules consequently allow FAX filing of only those documents that do not require a filing fee.

Other states are watching the experience in Idaho, to determine whether FAX filing of court documents will become a standard court practice.

Total Filings Off, Felonies Rise

DUI REPORT: FEWER CASES, FOR THIRD YEAR

Fewer drunken driving cases entered Idaho's trial courts last year, for the third year in a row. A total of 11,721 DUI cases entered the court system during 1989, which is down 207 cases, or 1.7% from the cases reported through 1988. Since the new DUI law was enacted in 1983, there has been a steady decrease in the number of new cases coming into the courts. With 1989's decline, coming on the heels of a 1% drop in 1988, court officials are hoping that the tide in drunken driving may have turned.

The "New DUI Law"

In 1983, the Idaho Legislature passed a "tough" new law to deter drunken driving. Immediately after the new law took effect on July 1, 1983, DUI charges dropped sharply statewide, offering hope that tougher sentences were discouraging drivers from drinking. Misdemeanor DUI complaints rebounded slightly in 1984 and again increased in 1986, but when adjusted for changes in the felony statutes, were still less than in pre-law (before the DUI law went into effect) days. While not dramatic, this consistent decrease has raised expectations that education efforts and increased law enforcement are having a significant effect.

Felonies Rise

The new DUI law allows prosecutors to upgrade a misdemeanor to a felony only when prior DUI convictions occurred after July 1, 1983. Thus, DUI defendants who might otherwise have been prosecuted on a felony charge, were given a clean slate as of that date. As a result, the number of DUI felony complaints first dropped dramatically beginning on July 1, 1983, to 90 complaints, but have risen steadily ever since. In 1989, 570 DUI felony cases were filed throughout Idaho, an increase of 24% over 1988.

Trials Stabilize

The number of DUI cases going to trial, which had increased from about 3% in "pre-new law" days, to 12% in December of 1983, appears now to have stabilized once again at about 3% of the dispositions statewide in 1989.

More Jail Time

Defendants convicted of DUI charges continue to receive sentences of incarceration at higher rates than before the new law went into effect. Although some sentences are suspended, 87.5% of the defendants who appeared before a judge for sentencing on misdemeanor DUI charges were sentenced to jail in 1989, up from 86.4% in 1988. Prior to the new DUI law, only 43% of the defendants appearing before a judge received a sentence including incarceration.

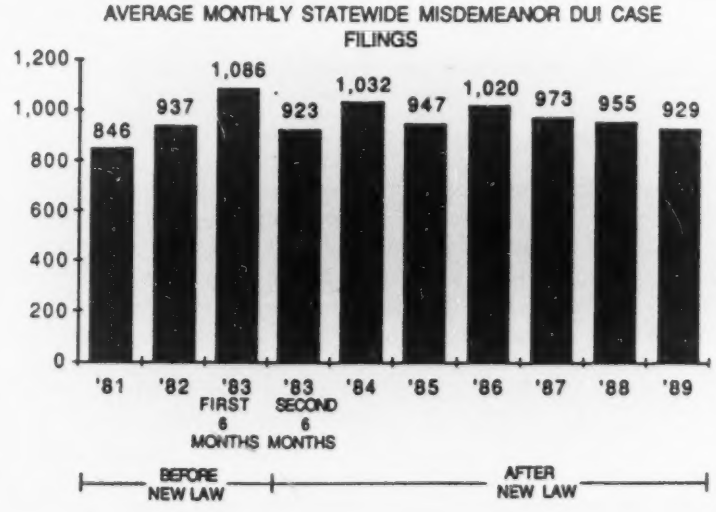
Plea Bargaining

About 71.9% of the misdemeanor DUI defendants pled guilty to misdemeanor DUI charges in 1989, down 6.1% from the 78% average of defendants who pled guilty prior to the new law.

The number of defendants pleading guilty to reduced or amended charges - "plea" or "charge bargains" - appears to have dropped slightly from the 19% reported in 1988. At the conclusion of 1989, 16.2% of the total dispositions were pleas entered by the defendant to reduced or amended charges. In Ada County, Idaho's largest county, the number of defendants pleading guilty to reduced or amended charges has dropped from a high of 42.3%, in December of 1983, to an average of 18.7% in 1989.

Hope For Trend

While the exact causes for decreases in DUI cases cannot be determined, the general decline since 1983 shows a trend away from the rising caseloads of the 70's and early 80's. Tough penalties, increased law enforcement, and public education are combining to take the drinking driver out of the courts and off Idaho's roads.



Funding Provided for Computer System

ISTARS ON LINE IN TEN COUNTIES

Computers became a daily fact of life in ten of Idaho's 44 counties, replacing in many county courthouses the leather-bound docket books, handwritten notices, and three-by-five cards previously used to manage trial court activities. During 1989, Kootenai, Idaho, Boundary, Twin Falls, Franklin, Caribou, Bingham, and Custer Counties were added to the two pilot counties, Minidoka and Canyon, that successfully implemented the Idaho Statewide Trial Court Automated Record System (ISTARS).

Early reports from ISTARS sites indicate significant improvements at the trial level. In Kootenai County, revenues have increased 69%, due in large part to the aggressive delinquent fine collection function of ISTARS. The system-generated forms have reduced the cost of preprinted forms and the automated preparation of statistical reports to state agencies has also resulted in considerable time savings. ISTARS has high acceptance in the counties where the system has been installed.

Judges Benefit

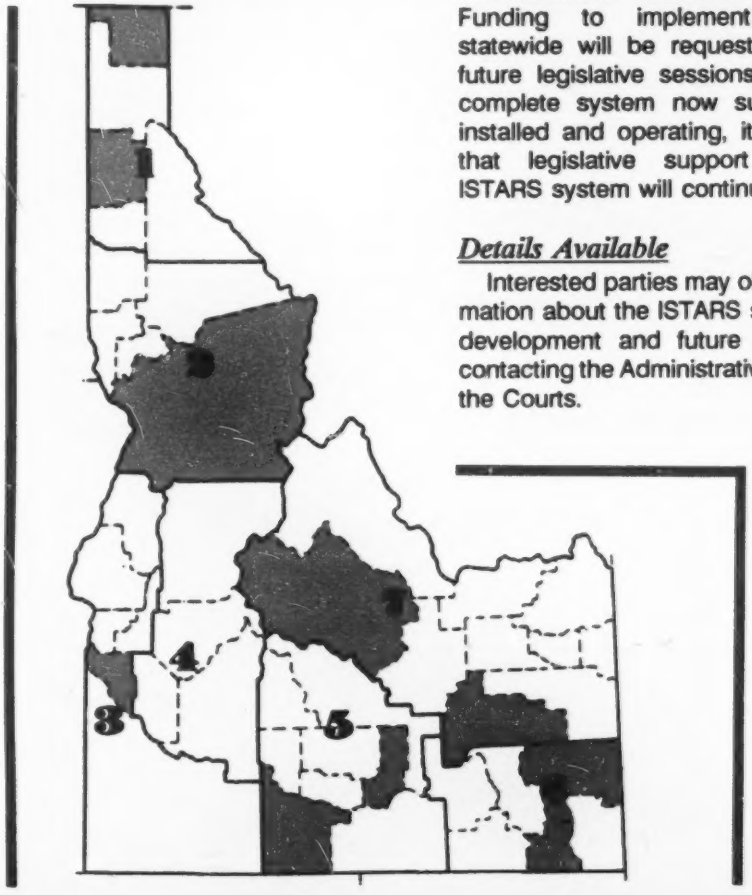
Idaho's trial judges also have reaped benefits from the implementation of ISTARS. In addition to having instantaneous case information at their fingertips, judges have been provided with personal computing capability for their opinions and correspondence, with many other office automation tools also available. Additionally, the judges' personal computers offer them the ability to tap into automated legal research systems, as well as to exchange jury instructions and other information with their counterparts, by merely sending a diskette.

ISTARS Features

ISTARS is a fully on-line computer system that is capable of storing and retrieving critical case status information on every trial court case. The system has an automated register of actions. It can prepare notices to all parties, as well as warrants, and affidavits. ISTARS accounts for and distributes all fines and fees, while processing and monitoring restitution and payments to victims. The accounting function provides for aggressive pursuit of outstanding fines through notices to parties for nonpayment and monitoring reports to clerical personnel. ISTARS provides a full array of calendar management tools that include the generation of daily calendars, the identification of conflicts when attorneys and police officers are unavailable, as well as reports to help manage the use of courtrooms. In addition, ISTARS provides statistical reporting to the Supreme Court and disposition reports to law enforcement agencies and the Department of Transportation.

ISTARS eliminates manual operations--such as the leather-bound docket books and three-by-five card tickler files--and reduces the need to pull case files to obtain case information. In many court locations, ISTARS will provide a public terminal to allow attorneys and the public to obtain court information.

STATEWIDE ISTARS INSTALLATIONS



Future Plans

During 1990, ISTARS is slated for installation in additional counties. Funding to implement ISTARS statewide will be requested during future legislative sessions. With a complete system now successfully installed and operating, it is hoped that legislative support for the ISTARS system will continue.

Details Available

Interested parties may obtain information about the ISTARS system, its development and future plans, by contacting the Administrative Office of the Courts.

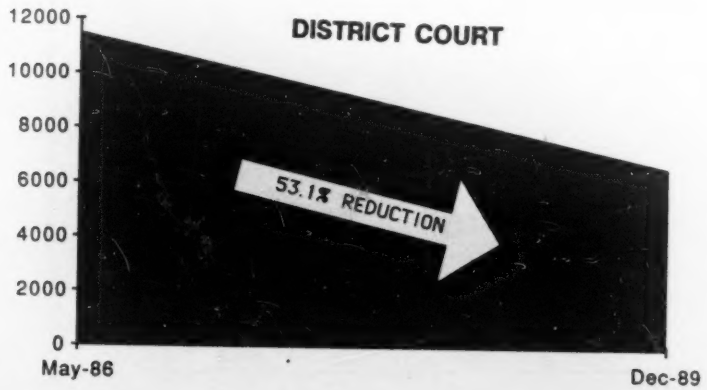
REDUCING DELAY

Despite rising caseloads, trial judges continue to focus on reducing delays in Idaho's trial courts. With support from the public and from private lawyers, court clerks and judges are actively managing their caseloads by the use of status conferences, pre-trial settlement meetings, and multiple trial settings, where sufficient judicial resources are available. Innovative approaches to dispute resolution, such as state and local bar association-sponsored settlement weeks, and increasing attempts to mediate child custody and visitation disputes, evidence cooperative efforts involving judges and lawyers to bring cases to resolution without formal litigation.

Armed with monthly reports identifying cases over adopted time standards, judges have made considerable progress in reducing delay. During the last 44 months, there has been a 40.3% reduction in the number of cases outside the standards. The magistrate division, which experienced a 4.5% rise in caseloads and a 17.3% growth in misdemeanor drug cases, gave back some ground in 1989. Still, since May of 1986, the number of pending magistrate cases over the time standards has fallen by 42.4%.

Idaho district judges, although hit with a 33.3% climb in felony drug cases, continued to make progress in reducing the number of their cases beyond the time standards. Since May, 1986, the district courts have cut the total cases over the time standards by 53.1%.

Though challenged by record level new case filings during 1989, Idaho's trial judges maintained their battle against unnecessary court delay.



Law Library Technology Leads Northwest

The State Law Library in 1989 became one of the first in the Northwest to install a CD-ROM (compact disk-read only memory) reader, allowing access to legal texts stored on compact disks, such as West Publishing's federal civil practice series. The digital optical information stored on an individual 3 1/2" compact disk can duplicate 10 to 15 feet of shelved books and can be searched through computerized indexes. Coupled with a new "LaserCat" electronic card catalog--which gives Idaho users entry to the library collections of the 140 member libraries of the Western Library Network--these new technologies are giving Idaho judges, lawyers, and public researchers greater access to the rapidly expanding body of legal research materials.

A court committee chaired by Justice Byron Johnson also has been pilot testing applications of technology in three county law libraries, in an attempt to develop models for local law libraries. The committee work earned a formal commendation from the Idaho State Bar in 1989, and the committee recommendations, expected in 1990, may offer cost-effective alternatives to counties trying to deal with limited law library resources.

INTRODUCTION

In 1973, the Idaho state judiciary was one of the first to implement a computerized system to collect detailed information on every case filed in each of its trial courts. "CLASS" (Case Load Analysis Support System), has been in use continually since 1973, with occasional refinements, and today stands as one of the best systems of its kind in the nation. The Idaho trial court judges and their deputy clerks have dedicated themselves to providing statistical data, which is critical to the reliability of the system.

Gathering information for measuring past and present case load factors is crucial to obtaining an accurate picture of the current situation, historical trends, and future projections. Idaho's trial courts provide information through reports every day. After these reports are closely scrutinized and edited, the data is entered into the CLASS system through the Supreme Court's computer. Monthly management reports are then prepared for the Administrative Office of the Courts, District Administrative Judges, Trial Court Administrators, District Judges, Magistrate Judges and District Court Clerks. The recipients usually receive these reports within two weeks after the close of each month. The CLASS system also produces statistical information used in annual reports to the Governor and the State Legislature. The information generated by the CLASS system has become an integral part of the planning, budgeting and daily operational processes of the Idaho courts.

This Appendix to the Idaho Courts Annual Report for 1989 consists primarily of a year-end report generated by the CLASS system, with the exception of the appellate case load information found on the first pages. The information on pages 1-3 was derived from reports generated by the automated system "ATS" (Appeal Tracking System), also developed entirely in-house and resident on the Supreme Court's computer.

The Administrative Office of the Courts would like to thank the Idaho trial court judges and clerks for their cooperation and hard work. Through dedication to CLASS reporting activities, they have contributed to the success of the system and to Idaho's position as one of the best court systems in the nation.

*These figures are reflected in the "Added/Transf" columns of the individual appellate courts' case load reports found on the two following pages.

NOTE: Newly-filed appeals are classified as "unassigned" until they reach the At Issue stage. At this point, each appeal is either retained by the Supreme Court or assigned to the Court of Appeals. Until they are thus distributed, they are considered part of the overall appellate case load, but are not counted as part of the case load of either court.

The following chart combines and summarizes, by major case type groups, the case load activities of all three elements: Unassigned cases, Supreme Court cases, and Court of Appeals cases.
